Don CHEE

Project Manager at Muni

Donald F. Chee (1941-2002) is a Chinese American who was born in San Francisco, California. He went to the local schools in San Francisco. After, he went to UC Berkeley where he studied electrical engineering. Don Chee was a Peace Corps volunteer, a teacher, an engineer, and a Project Manager for Muni. Before working for Muni, he worked for the city's Hetch Hetchy Water and Power project for 25 years. Later on, he was hired to a Project Manager at Muni and his first big project was working on the J Church train (which runs on rails). Afterwards, Chee was put in charge of the F streetcar line, his best impact. Today, the F line goes from Market Street, through Ferry Plaza in the Embarcadero, to Fisherman's Wharf.
